Aboriginal Business Series:

Natural Resource Partnerships and Procurement

December 5, 2011

The Sutton Place Hotel, Edmonton

Natural Resource Partnerships and Procurement: The natural resource sector has several business contracting needs providing the majority of opportunity for Aboriginal entrepreneurs and community owned development corporations. The opportunities are in transportation, construction, food and facilities outsourcing and exploration. Aboriginal community strengths have contributed to business growth and successful startups in these four areas. Experts and leading companies will explain where the opportunities are and how to successfully realize them. Producers in the natural resource sector will explain their procurement requirements and initiatives to grow business with Aboriginal suppliers and partners.

Agenda Highlights

- Business opportunities in transportation, construction, food and facilities outsourcing and exploration
- Economic forces and the current business climate
- How partnerships and joint ventures have been used to create new business ventures with Aboriginal ownership
- What suppliers need to know to qualify for opportunities with natural resource producers
- What procurement initiatives natural resource producers have used to boost business with Aboriginal owned companies
- How government policies and programs are shaping opportunities for Aboriginal owned business in the resource sector
